AN UNFORTUNATE AFFAIR.

To [illegible] a general and protracted strike of [illegible] employed in and about the build[illegible] in Jackson park would be unfortunate [illegible] it mildly, unfortunate for the Ex[illegible] [illegible] for the workmen and for the Fair.

Chiefly, however, the World's Fair would [illegible]. It is of extreme importance that [illegible] all be as nearly completed as possible on [illegible], three weeks hence. Two or [illegible] days of delay now might make it un[illegible] the management to keep its [illegible] public, that everything would be [illegible] the first day of May. Work [illegible] without interruption, or President [illegible] on his arrival here to start [illegible] of the Fair may find nothing [illegible] opinion, as elected [illegible] report [illegible] the strike had actually [illegible] that the plain duty of all concerned was to [illegible], discuss the points at issue [illegible], and arrive at an agree[illegible] of time. Neither side [illegible] could afford to as[illegible] and uncompromising at[illegible] the whole world watching the [illegible] judgment upon its merits.

By 9 o'clock about two thousand men [illegible] quit work. An hour later [illegible] out.

[illegible] ACTION TAKEN.

[illegible] was taken by the construc[illegible] tion [illegible], and orders were issued [illegible] Columbian guards [illegible] all [illegible] found actively [illegible] to quit. From that time on the [illegible] were pretty frequent. The prompt [illegible] of [illegible] angered the crowd of men at the gates, and a good [illegible] of [illegible] was indulged in. [illegible] counters occurred between the strikers who were under the [illegible] of [illegible] and the non-union [illegible] showed a disposition to go to work. [illegible] of officers was called out an[illegible] the men to either go to w[illegible] leave the vicinity. This latter [illegible] were slow to obey, and as a re[illegible] ceived some sharp raps from the [illegible] clubs, who, after half an hour's work [illegible] ceeded in forcing the men across the street, where they held them by patrolling [illegible] down in front of them.

The men out argued con[illegible] on the [illegible] that the work of the Fair [illegible] far from completion and the [illegible] Exposition [illegible] so short. On the other hand, Superintendent Richards [illegible] the strike would not affect the [illegible] could [illegible] all the mechanics he wanted. [illegible] answered this by pointing to [illegible] signs which have been conspicuous [illegible] the gr[illegible] all the time. They said that more help [illegible] last week [illegible] is the demand now.

A SERIES OF STRIKES.

The strike was one of sympathy. [illegible] Tuesday the Carpenters' council [illegible] its annually prepared scale for [illegible] contractors to sign. Most of them [illegible] city and at the Exposition grounds agree[illegible] the scale provisions being 40 cents an h[illegible] as the minimum of wages and eight hours to constitute a day. The Exposition company [illegible] practically conforming to the con[illegible] but refused to sign a clause requiring [illegible] employment of union men only.

J. B. Cogswell, president of the Car[illegible] council, then ordered a strike of [illegible] carpenters employed by the Exposition company, and not all of them obeyed the [illegible] The strike was a practical failure, [illegible] of [illegible] to work during the [illegible] week. The matter was carried to the Building Trades council, and Saturday [illegible] to the Exposition managers was [illegible], which [illegible] stated that unless the demands of the carpenters were acceded to a general strike would be ordered this [illegible] ing. The manifesto was presented to President Higinbotham Saturday night. He [illegible] it carefully and said he would [illegible] whatever. To-day's strike was the re[illegible]

[illegible] the privilege of the [illegible] to a Chinaman seek[illegible] the United States will be one [illegible] question before [illegible] and also the imprison[illegible] at hard labor provided by section 4, for [illegible] Chinaman who is found unlawfully with[illegible] the United States. Arrest of Chinamen [illegible] the 5th of May will be numerous, not [illegible] test case of the courts but to greatly embarrass the federal officials. Only a few such arrests are likely to be made in New York and Chicago, but the prisons will likely be more crowded than those of Paris [illegible] the Reign of Terror when the federal officers of San Francisco get to work. The act of May 5, 1892, authorized arrest by any [illegible] customs officer, collector of in[illegible] or his deputies, Unit[illegible] his deputies. No extensive [illegible] of San Francisco have [illegible] arrests.

It has just be[illegible] that several methods of obtaining [illegible] to this country in violation of law [illegible] pursued. One of these is [illegible] making forged certificates, [illegible] was thought had been broken up. Another evasion [illegible] been [illegible] under the sixth section of the act [illegible], which authorizes Chinese [illegible] to visit the United States.

Chinamen of all classes are allowed by the [illegible] to traverse the United States in the [illegible] en route to another [illegible]. A system has lately grown up of [illegible] numbers of Chinamen to New [illegible] to Havana, where they [illegible] with certificates by the Chi[illegible] general that they were mer[illegible] the law provides that a [illegible] other than a laborer entitled [illegible] to come within the United [illegible] the permission of and be [illegible] by the Chinese gov[illegible]. Prompt Justice.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The Peruvian [illegible] has taken the initiatory steps [illegible] complying with the demands of the United States that reparation be made for the outrages committed on one of its con[illegible] agencies in Peru. It was not until [illegible] morning that the name of the place at [illegible] which was omitted in the first dis[illegible] from Minister Hicks notifying Secre[illegible] Gresham of the affair, was made known to the State department. The information was contained in a cablegram from Minister Hicks.

A Successful Trip.

CHICAGO, April 1[illegible].—Miss Bess Mitchell Doolittle, wh[illegible] railway with[illegible] touching her feet to the ground, arrived in Chicago at 5:30 o'clock last evening over the Michigan Central road in the best of health and spirits and thoroughly pleased with her journey. Throughout the long trip she did not experience one moment of weariness, and officials of the roads over which she traveled greeted her at connecting points and made her journey pleasant. By the original schedule she was due to arrive in Chicago this afternoon, but the severe [illegible] in New York made it necessary for [illegible] change her plans somewhat, and she came to Chicago directly from Boston, arriving two hours ahead of her time. Local railway officials were not notified of [illegible] arrival and she was met at the depot yesterday afternoon with a carriage and taken to her home. This same carriage called for her this morning and she was conveyed to her office.

Miss Doolittle is the confidential clerk of the Knight & Leonard company, and her trip grew out of a discussion between American and foreign railroad men. The Americans were discussing the superiority of through car service, sleeping car accommodations and the excellence of union depot accommodations in the United States. The foreigners [illegible] the claims and finally one of the Americans made the boast that a lady could leave Chicago for Portland, Ore., go to San Francisco, to El Paso, Tex., the City of Mexico, climb to the top of the hill of Chapultepec, return to Laredo and thence by way of St. Louis, New York and Boston, return to Chicago without setting her feet on the ground. What was more the speaker said, he would find a lady in Chicago, who on twenty four hours notice would undertake the journey. The challenge was accepted and Miss Bess Mitchell Doolittle undertook the long journey which she has so successfully accomplished.

The Missouri River Booming.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., April 10.—The Missouri river is on a rampage and is now bigger at this point than for years. The pile tramway or false work of the Missouri bridge, extending 100 feet into the river, was carried away by lodging driftwood. Three laborers went down with it, but succeeded in clambering on to a rafter and were taken out a mile below. The water is cutting away great areas of farm lands near Sioux Bend, a few miles above the city and, at intervals of a few moments pieces of the Stanton and Covington town sites, across the river from this city, as large as town lots have slipped into the river. If the inroads keep up many buildings in Covington will have to be moved back from the river to escape destruction. Steamboat traffic is tied up. The Capitola could not stem the current, and [illegible] the Point below this city. The Capitola [illegible] in making twelve miles in twenty-four hours and [illegible] tied up. The [illegible] is filled with logs and trees indicating heavy inroads on the banks above the city. The current is [illegible] at sixty miles an hour [illegible] is still rising.

There are thousands of Cubans in this and other countries who give the [illegible] of one day's labor each month in the [illegible] to swell a general fund for the purpose of [illegible] in the freedom of Cuba, and there are thousands of [illegible] who contribute a percentage of their earnings [illegible] pay day for the furtherance of [illegible]

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The recent decisions of Judges Taft and Ricks in Ohio, and Speer in Georgia in relation to the rights and duties of railroad employes came up in the Senate to-day in connection with a resolution instructing the committee on Interstate Commerce to inquire into that and other subjects and quite a long and interesting debate resulted, which had not closed when the Senate adjourned.

ANOTHER JUDICIAL DECISION.

The relations of capital and labor have been the subject of several very important [illegible] within the last fortnight. [illegible] Ann Arbor [illegible] in the United States District Court, upon the petition of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers to require the Receiver of the Central Railway to enter into a contract with the organization for the [illegible] of its [illegible]

In the [illegible] of his opinion Judge Speer laid down the law very plainly. After [illegible] the rule of the Brotherhood which requires every member of it to refuse to handle cars coming from a boycotted road, the Judge went on to say:

"Now there cannot be a doubt that the rule of the Brotherhood is in direct and [illegible] violation of the laws of the land, and no court, state or federal, could [illegible] for an instant to so [illegible]. It is plainly a rule or by-law in restraint of trade or commerce [illegible] law. A combination of persons [illegible] to the [illegible] which would have the effect to defeat the provisions of the [illegible] law, inhibiting discrimination in the transportation of freight and [illegible] would be liable to severe [illegible]. Now it is true that in [illegible] its strike upon the transportation [illegible] of the country, whether main line or branch, [illegible] would be interstate [illegible] or foreign commerce. It will be practically impossible hereafter for a body of men to combine to hinder and delay the work of the transportation company without becoming obnoxious to the [illegible] of these laws, and a combination or [illegible] of railroad officials or other [illegible] of capital with the same effect will be equally under the ban of the [illegible] statutes.

This ruling, it will be observed, is directly in line with that of Judges Taft and Ricks in the Ann Arbor case. As for the precise question before him, Judge Speer directed the employment of the engineers, but in regard to the handling of cars from other roads he further says:

"The receiver cannot violate the law and the engineers cannot compel him to do so without themselves becoming obnoxious to the criminal statutes and the court does not doubt from their bearing and testimony in this [illegible] that they only need to be advised of these facts when they will immediately recede from the unlawful and most dangerous attitude in which this rule has placed them. It is indeed a rule which more than all others has given strength and comfort to the enemies of organized labor.

When any engineer may at any time exercise his right as an individual to leave the service of the receiver he may not do so in such manner as to injure the property or impede its proper management by the receiver. In case of any issue with the management in which the Brotherhood or its members are concerned, and the members in the employ of the receiver shall desire to leave his service in a body or otherwise in such manner as may in any way impede the operations of the road they will be required to do so upon such [illegible] and conditions as the court may think proper for the protection of the property and the maintenance of justice and fair play to all concerned

If the engineers are sensible they will take Judge Speer's advice, and if the Brotherhood is sensible, it will at once take measures to conform its rules to the law of the land

SENATOR ALLISON AS A PROPHET

Senator Allison as a prophet is not a success. The successful prophecy must be conditional, it must be imaginative and there must be, according to the best precedents a delightful vagueness in the details. Now Senator Allison says the coming monetary conference will bring an enlarged use of silver; the European nations participating will use silver for subsidiary coin, retiring the small gold coin and [illegible] certificates on bullion purchases. Congress the next [illegible] will modify the tariff but will not adopt a revenue tariff, for that would drive out gold and bring the country to a silver [illegible], the [illegible] will be notable for tariff and currency debates, the subjects will be [illegible] in their relation to each other, so [illegible] will [illegible] prophecy, but a very great part of the larger [illegible] of silver [illegible] the [illegible] of the coming conference, will be adopted if the silver men will consent to it as a temporary compromise. A man who makes a statement like that knows too many things that he doesn't know. But how delightful if it would all come true.

THE CHINESE EXCLUSION ACT

The Treasury department has modified to some extent the provisions of the outrageous Geary Chinese exclusion law. Photographs for the purpose of identification are dispensed with, and the testimony of one credible witness is declared to be sufficient. This action of the Department is in the nature of a confession of the injustice of the law. If it is to be enforced the precautions adopted by Secretary Foster were none too stringent.

Meanwhile the Chinese do not seem to care very much about the law or the method of its enforcement. They have decided the law is unjust and contrary to their rights, and are content to leave the matter to the decision of the courts. Some of the best lawyers of the United States are of a similar opinion, and the result of the frantic and unwise haste with which this law was rushed through Congress may be to leave us without any legislation on the subject.

The first trip on the new stage line between Green River and the Henry mountains was made yesterday. This is an important step in the opening up of a wonderfully rich country in south eastern Utah and indicates that development there is making rapid progress. It is also announced that the Western Union will soon build a telegraph line along the stage road. At Eagle City, the southern terminus a hotel is completed and several stores are in course of construction. Reports from the mines are most favorable. The Henry mountains should not be confounded with the San Juan mines whose worth [illegible] was demonstrated last winter.

The Peruvian "outrage" turns out to be the result of an anti Masonic riot. While the lodge room was being raided a certain Emilio de Cazorla, who happened to be consular agent for the United States, was shot in the leg. As Senor Cazorla was unfortunate to receive the bullet in his individual corporation and not in his official capacity, the United States has no cause to interfere. The incident is an illustration of the intolerance and ignorance of Peruvian Catholics, and that is all.

So far as can be learned from the press dispatches, the strike at the World's Fair buildings is an entirely arbitrary and unnecessary affair. The workmen had no dispute with their employers about hours or wages but they insisted on the dismissal of all non-union workmen. There is work enough for all, and such a demand at such a time will not help the strikers before the tribunal of public opinion.

There is apparently no good reason why the Senate should not adjourn at once, yet its adjournment is not likely to result from a reason that is not a good one. If there is public business to do, the Senators should do it, if not, the Senators should go home. The lack of a quorum proves either that the session has already lasted too long, or that a majority of its members are delinquent to their duty. Perhaps it proves both.

The Santa Fe strike at Topeka is already recognized as a failure. The strikers had no real grievance, and most of them, we trust, are sensible enough to know it, and to go back to work without delay.

[illegible] Grover

Captain Anson is a politician as well as a veteran first baseman. He wants to get his father into the Marshalltown, Iowa, post office, and visited Washington a short time ago and interviewed President Cleveland. It is said the big captain began by striking an attitude, such as he [illegible] when making a kick over a called strike, and spoke as follows:

"Mr Umpire, I mean Mr President—I have come on this field to see if I couldn't get my father to first base. I mean in the post office at Marshalltown. Now, you see, the old man has always put up a stiff game. He has been a staunch old Democrat for fifty years, he never yet laid down, nor went to sleep off third, nor played for a record and queered the chances of the team. Lots of times when he might have made a three bagger and scored an office, he has sacrificed to get some other Democrat safely home and in all the years I have known him I never saw him strike out nor hit the ball through the infield for a force out or a double play. His work on the bases has been clever, and his fielding elegant. You ought to see him when some Republican or Prohibitionist is at bat playing up for a short bunt and nailing the runner on the lines. Now there's the case. Is it good or must I get Nick Young to change the rules and set the pitcher back a little farther?"

The President said he would consider the case and dismissed the Captain in high good humor.—Denver News.

A Revolutionary Park

Every American who takes a patriotic interest in places with historic associations will sympathize with the movement to set apart the Revolutionary camp ground at Valley Forge for a public park. Some years ago the house known as Washington's headquarters here and a few acres of ground were acquired and restored by an association. The bill now before the legislature of Pennsylvania provides that the title to and ownership of 250 acres of land shall be vested in that State so that the fortifications and their surroundings may be maintained as near as possible in their original condition as a military camp and for the enjoyment of the public forever. The establishment of the boundaries of this park, with the power to manage and maintain it is to be vested in a board of ten unsalaried commissioners, appointed by the Governor and a sum of $30,000 is appropriated for the purchase of the land and other necessary expenses. The price per acre is to be determined ultimately by the courts of Montgomery county so that there can be no suspicion that the project will be turned to the advancement of any private interests. The forts and the line of entrenchments are remarkably well preserved, because the hills on which they were built are so rugged that they have had little value for agricultural purposes and have escaped tillage. A growth of thick underbrush has helped to protect them from washing by the rains. The view from the hills up and down the Schuylkill extending for many miles, is very beautiful, and the plan seems commendable from every point of view.—Garden and Forest.

Arbor Day

The highest purpose which can be served by the observance of Arbor Day is to increase popular knowledge in regard to trees. The forest problems which confront us can not be dealt with efficiently until an active public opinion is aroused that is into the great mass of people have become so well informed as to the [illegible] needs that they will compel the [illegible] of an enlightened forest policy. Nor can good taste in regard to tree planting for ornament ever become general so long as the great bulk of the people grow up without being able even to call by name the trees under whose branches they pass every day. It is a fortunate thing, therefore, that this celebration has become a children's holiday, for few people who do not begin to study trees early ever acquire any adequate knowledge of them later in life. That the idea of instruction has been a fundamental one in the observance of Arbor Day is proved by the number of addresses delivered on that occasion. But sometimes those who arrange for the celebration are apt to think that any man who can talk fluently is capable of instructing children in such a simple subject as trees and their uses and that any minister, lawyer or editor can rise up and deliver an address off hand which will not only interest the children but give them all the instruction they need. Of course, this is a mistake. Whatever is said to make the day one worth observing must come out of the fullness of knowledge and experience and whatever is done should be done with forethought and deliberation if it is to have any educational value.—Garden and Forest.

SOME INTERESTING COMPARISONS

The Number of Lines Shakespeare's Characters Have to Say

Some tables published in England by L. M. Griffiths, giving the number of lines spoken by each character in Shakespeare's plays, furnish a basis for sundry interesting comparisons and contrasts.

The leading male characters have much more to say than their female counterparts. As might have been guessed Hamlet is by far the most loquacious—using the word in this arithmetical sense of the men. His share in the dialogue is 1,569 lines—the lines in the tables being those of The Globe edition and parts of lines at beginning and end of speeches being counted as whole lines. Next to the royal Dane come Richard III with 1,161 lines and Iago follows hard upon with 1,117. Henry V in the "magnificent monologue" of a play named from him speaks 1,063 lines.

These four characters are the only ones that have more than a thousand lines apiece. At some distance behind them comes Othello with 888, Coriolanus with 885, the Duke, in "Measure For Measure" with 880 and Timon with 863. Antony, in Antony and Cleopatra," is the only other man with more than 800 his reckoning being 829. Between 800 and 700 we find Lear (770) Richard II (755), Brutus, in "Julius Caesar" (72[illegible]), Falstaff, in "2 Henry IV" (719), Titus Andronicus (718) and Macbeth (705), and between 700 and 600, fat Jack again in "1 Henry IV" (686) Leontes (681) Prospero ([illegible]), Biron ([illegible]), Romeo (618) and Prince Henry, in "1 Henry IV" (616). The others above 500 are Menenius ([illegible]), Petruchio (585) Hotspur (5[illegible]) the King, in "Hamlet," (5[illegible]), Troilus (541) Philip Faulconbridge ([illegible]) and C[illegible] (507).

Among the women there are but five who exceed the limit of 500 lines. I should have guessed Portia would be first, but her 589 lines are [illegible] by Rosalind's 749. Cleopatra's 6[illegible] and Imogen's [illegible]. Juliet has 541. Between 400 and 500 we find only Helena of "All's Well" (479) and Isabella ([illegible]). The others above 300 are Desdemona ([illegible]) Katharine of Aragon ([illegible]), Mistress Page (361), Viola ([illegible]), Paulina ([illegible]), Julia in the "Two Gentlemen of Verona" ([illegible]) Olivia (321), the Queen in "3 Henry VI" (317), Volumnia (315) Cr[illegible] (31[illegible]) Beatrice (3[illegible]) the Countess in All's Well (3[illegible]) and Celia (304).

It will be noted that only 2[illegible] of the ladies have more than 500 lines each, while 21 of their lords exceed 600 and Rosalind, who [illegible] all the rest of her sex by 79 lines, does not talk half as much as Hamlet. Some of the famous female characters have surprisingly little to say, as Miranda (142), Perditi (129) and Cordelia (115). Kate the shrew, though very sharp of tongue, uses the unruly member only to the extent of 220 lines, inclusive of her long lecture of 44 lines to her untamed sisters in the [illegible]. Lady Macbeth has but 261 lines and Hermoine but 211.—English Critic.

A Modern Superstition

One of the most popular modern superstitions is that a dog howling under the window of a sick chamber indicates the speedy dissolution of the patient. According to the early Aryan mythology, the souls of the dead were wafted to their future home by the night wind. The latter was supposed to be an enormous wolf subsequently a large dog whose mission it was to gather the souls of the departed and escort them to the world beyond the grave. In this way the dog was invested with the attributes of a psychopomp, a guider of souls. According to the Romans he was the wish hound of Hermes on whom devolves the duty of escorting the souls of the dead to the River Styx. When he howled, it was a notice to the soul to quit the body and in some parts of Europe windows are then opened so that there may be nothing to prevent the soul from joining the mystic cavalcade.

Akin to this is the origin of the nightmare. The latter was supposed by the ancient Aryans to be a huge dog which seated itself on the breast of the afflicted person. Subsequently the dog was changed into a mara or spirit which visited sleeping persons, hence the word nightmare. The mara frequently played all kinds of pranks and to this bit of imagination is the world indebted for numerous fairy stories.—New York Telegram.

Drinking Toast.

The bit of toasted bread that was deemed such an important ingredient in many an old time drink was considered a morsel of honor and fell to the one whose turn came last to sip from the common cup.

In Cromwell's time so we read a favorite toast of the cavaliers was to put a crumb of bread in the glass and before they drank to say "God send this crum well down."

The very name toast calls up a host of anecdotes that have been the very essence of many a convivial scene.

The well known one of the accomplished Judge Story at a dinner in honor of Everett's appointment as embassador to the court of St James is especially apropos.

"Genius—sure to be welcomed where Everett goes."

The next response to this was:

"Law equity and jurisprudence—[illegible] efforts can raise them above the Story."

Alphonse Karr one of the daintiest of writers once gave a toast at a dinner of physicians by proposing "the health to the sick."—Detroit Free Press.

Expressive Slang

Good slang is idiomatically expressive and has a narrow escape sometimes from being poetical. An English traveler had a quarrel with the mate of a Mississippi steamboat and the case came into court. The counsel for the plaintiff in his opening address to the jury thus stated his cause of action. The first officer of the Bella [illegible] ordered my client in most violent and peremptory terms and threatened him if he did not immediately remove his personal effects from the entrance way of the steamer he would precipitate him into the raging flood below. The evidence of the bystanders as to the mate's words was as follows: "Look here stranger, if you don't tote your plunder off that gangplank right smart I'll spill you in the drink."—Atlanta Monthly.

Marble For Billiard Tables

The Austrians are making a new departure in the manufacture of billiard tables. In many parts of Austria Hungary the billiard table makers have entirely given up slate tables, which are made in two or three parts, and are adopting marble slabs in a single piece. The slabs are not polished but simply dressed and ground on both sides, and their ordinary dimensions are about 7 feet by 3 feet 6 inches by 1½ inch thick.—New York Telegram.

HOW ONE CATCHES COLD

A Complaint in Which an Ounce of Prevention Is Worth Pounds of Cure

The winter and early spring are justly dreaded by elderly people and those of weak frame on account of a variety of ills which are commonly grouped under the title of a cold. Of course there is no such thing as catching cold.

The term is used to describe a local congestion which may run on to inflammation or fever and might therefore be more correctly described as "catching hot."

But the good old name describes the ultimate cause and is therefore well chosen. It is singular that more is known of apparently obscure diseases—cholera tuberculosis even cancer or leprosy—than is known of the everyday ills which are grouped under the general title. Briefly it is known that a local chill is reflected by an internal congestion—that is, that the chilling and consequent contraction of the blood supply of one particular section of the body may be followed by a congestion or engorgement with blood of some other section not necessarily directly connected with the exposed part. How or why this occurs physiologists are yet in doubt. That it does occur every one knows.

The results of engorgement with blood of any particular organ are generally understood. Muscular rheumatism occurs when the muscles are attacked, bronchitis when it falls upon the delicate membrane of the bronchial tubes, and more serious maladies when it attacks more vital organs. The "cold settled" is the old fashioned term on this or that vital organ, and it aptly describes the condition. Of course there must be some physical reason for such selection, but the causes are so obscure except in a most general manner, the doctors are unable to assign them.

Congestion of any organ may result in several ways. Sometimes it subsides, slowly or quickly, as the case may be. Sometimes it continues and forms what is known as a chronic case, with permanent dilation of the blood vessels supplying the parts affected. Occasionally the congestion is so severe that the circulation is cut off the part dies, choked to death by its own oversupply, and must be cast off by a process which is known as inflammation. In any [illegible] the process is painful and often dangerous.

These few facts, which are well established, are about all that is definitely known of the phenomena known as "catching cold." Why of two men similarly exposed one should die in a week and the other suffer no harm is one of the apparently inscrutable mysteries which some future generation will have to solve. The moral however, is obvious. It is to avoid catching cold by avoiding local exposure, to maintain the body in such a high state of health that a congestion, if brought on, will result only in temporary and comparatively trivial suffering and so to take care of even a slight [illegible] that it will not run on to the danger which [illegible] results from "catching cold." The ounce of prevention is worth many pounds of cure, and in changeable, [illegible] weather there is no better maxim that can be kept in mind than the old one, "Keep your feet warm, your head cool."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Country Club is early in the field with an announcement of amusement for the afternoon of Decoration Day May 30. An extensive programme has been prepared, and will comprise running, trotting and hurdle races together with a race for cowboys only This race which is to be a relay race, distance of [illegible] and a half miles, will in itself prove a great attraction [illegible] each competitor must ride three bronchos changing every half mile Handsome purses will be given and it can safely be predicted that there will be a good afternoon of sport. The full programme will appear shortly

There was a rock slide on the Midland Sunday this side of Leadville and a freight train ran into it and was partly broken up, though no one was hurt This delayed the passenger train due in this city at 9.30 p m so that it did not arrive until 8 30 this morning A 30 foot bridge beyond Hagerman was carried away by another snow and land slide and trains were somewhat delayed

New York Stock Market.

New York April 10 Money on call has been fairly active ranging from 4 to [illegible] last loan at 5, and closing offered at

The stock market after a [illegible] opening became weak on the news from Chicago concerning the strike at the World's Fair grounds and the positive announcement of the engagement of $1 [illegible] for shipment by the steamship [illegible] for Europe to-morrow During the day reports were industriously circulated that the shipments of gold by the steamers [illegible] late in the week would be as large [illegible] heavier than those to be made tomorrow On the strength of all this the bears hammered the list and when ever the market showed a disposition [illegible] put out additional lines of shorts In [illegible] few instances, however were the [illegible] really important. THOMAS F BAYARD.

The British minister at the City of Mexico is allowed about $50 000 a year all told and he spends it all or nearly all in sumptuous entertaining The dinners which he gives in the Mexican capital are described as truly royal and their richness quite puts in the shade the efforts of our poorly paid representative at that capital A few years ago our minister to Mexico was paid only $12 000 a year but minister after minister finding it impossible to maintain the dignity of the United States on that sum without plunging himself into bankruptcy congress very reluctantly raised the mission to the first class

If Minister Gray goes into entertaining at all—and it is difficult to see how he can avoid doing so and hope to maintain a status which will be satisfactory to himself and his government—he will find his salary of $17 000 a year scant enough That looks like a big sum of money to most of us but it doesn't go very far with a foreign minister Besides Mexico has one of the gayest and most prodigal capitals in the world All the wealth of that country nearly is owned in the City of Mexico It is a land of glorious climate soil and resources, but teems with poverty stricken millions. The wealth is controlled by a few and these fortunate families live in splendor in the capital

There is little or no manufacturing in the country and excessive import taxes are levied upon everything bought in the United States or Europe For instance there are [illegible] breweries in Mexico and the imported beer costs 50 cents a bottle No wine is produced in the country and those who drink wine they find it necessary to pay enormous prices The truth is I wouldn't take the Mexican mission as a gift In addition to the necessity of spending all of one's salary and throwing in his time as worth nothing one must run enormous chances of ending his days there The city has no drainage It is reeking in the accumulated filth of centuries Who would want to leave the glorious United States and live in a hole like that four years simply for the purpose of acquiring a little fame?

Much more sensible would it be for a man to stay at home and devote his energies to something for the benefit of his fellow man Take as an example the case of Professor Langley secretary of the Smithsonian institution For several years this man has devoted his great learning and his wonderful energy to the development of a flying machine He spends his days at the institution earning the salary which is paid him and he does earn it [illegible] But I don't believe he would admit a cabinet minister to his house in the evening After dinner is the golden hour which he devotes and which he has [illegible] for several years to work upon his device All social invitations all the fleeting vanities of the world he eschews with the rigor of a religious recluse He has no time for frivolities [illegible] is too short with this man to waste it [illegible] that might be devoted to science Is it not admirable?

Of course it is, and the results of all this self denial of all this labor are [illegible] the world and make Professor Langley [illegible] of the most famous men of his time The progress which he has made with his flying machine he [illegible] secret but I [illegible] that within a year or [illegible] will without much doubt solve the problem of problems He is building a flying machine that will fly Years of [illegible] Professor Langley that [illegible] to be effected by means of [illegible] Professor Langley set out to build an [illegible] plane a flying machine which shall sail [illegible] by virtue of the impact of [illegible] against the surrounding atmosphere Countless experiments have been made in this direction also but all have failed for lack of proper adjustment of weight and absence of the necessary [illegible] He deserves fame and is almost sure to attain it

There are many different ways of attaining fame Some men acquire it and others have it thrust upon them As an example of the latter take the case of Judge Maguire of San Francisco who is coming down here as a member of our

Dr PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder.

The only Pure Cream of Tartar Powder [illegible] Ammonia No Alum

Used in Millions of Homes—40 Years the Standard

[illegible] of the most [illegible] single tax [illegible] every country [illegible] that they fail to [illegible] It was in all [illegible] that Judge Maguire [illegible] story which [illegible] I will try to tell his [illegible]

[illegible] San Francisco [illegible]

[illegible] THE CAT

It is as Judge Maguire's sisters remember [illegible] and could not see [illegible] I may [illegible] and that shut one [illegible] and then the other called all my powers of imagination forward but the artful cat eluded me Concluding that the thing was a humbug and that there was no cat in the picture I walked away feeling that the shopkeeper had imposed upon me A good many people are the same way with single taxing They don't see the point and say the whole thing is a fake But I couldn't get the cat out of my mind and in an hour went back again The result was the same. The figure of the cat never presented itself to my vision

Next morning found me once more before the window I had determined to see that cat or die Finally a friend standing near me cried out "There it is. Don't you see his tail?" And looking where he pointed I did see the end of Mr Cat's tail and in another second the whole feline had flashed upon me He was almost as big as the picture itself, and when I had once seen him he almost obscured everything else on the canvas So it is, my friends with the single tax principle All of a sudden it flashes upon the window of your mind, and it can never be removed thereafter."

Another man who is fast acquiring fame in a queer way is Frank Lawler of Chicago An odd sort of a fellow is Frank He served [illegible] terms in congress from Chicago, and though an illiterate man who had graduated from a saloon and the board of aldermen he made a good congressman He nearly killed himself working as an errand boy for his constituents Once he was well to do but he spent all his money in politics, and now his little home is mortgaged. He wants to be postmaster of Chicago To back up his application he brought to Washington with him the most remarkable petition which was ever presented to a president. It contains in all 63 497 names

But even this unparalleled petition which he brought to the capital with him in a trunk that had traveled around the world been in two steamship disasters and any number of railway accidents and come out unscathed is not likely to do him as much good as the fact that at a church fair in Chicago a year or more ago where Baby Ruth and Benny McKee were rivals for a beautiful chair Frank rushed in and conducted Baby Ruth's campaign with so much energy that the chair was voted her as the most popular baby in America. Mrs. Cleveland now has but one candidate for appointment and his name is Frank Lawler

Apple bees are no longer good form in the rural districts of northeastern Pennsylvania Whittling parties are the favorite evening amusement now and skill with the jackknife is the fashionable attainment Prizes are offered for the best ax handle rolling pin potato masher or other useful and aggressive article and the only tools allowed are a jackknife sandpaper and a file The girls are not barred from the contests and some of them are more expert than their male competitors. A time limit of two hours is usually set for the completion of the article called for, and after things are cleared up the contestants have a supper and sometimes a dance

Chicago is to have a new theater soon It will be called the Empire and will be under the management of A H Hart with A F Leopold as treasurer The house is expected to be ready for occupancy early in June Popular prices will prevail

The latest method of avoiding the amateur bicycle racing rule is for the racing man to hire himself to a manufacturer as a traveling salesman His salary depends on how fast he can travel
